

Blevins Operator Maintains Cantaloup Marketing Service

Concentration Center for Melons Is Successful at Hendrix Crossroads, Under Management of J. L. Brooks

By J. T. BOWDEN, Jr.

Unique among the business enterprises of Hempstead County is the cantaloupe marketing service owned and managed by J. L. Brooks of Blevins. For the past five years Mr. Brooks has operated his cantaloupe concentration center at the Hendrix Crossroads, four miles east of Blevins on state highway No. 24. Each year has seen an increase in the number of farmers taking advantage of the service offered and the amount of fruit handled.

Big Crowd Is Expected to

Is Improved

The Williams Lumber company and Hope National Guard softball teams will resume hostilities at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at Fair Park in the third and deciding game to determine the winner of the first-half softball league championship.

The first two games were played last Friday, Williams winning the opener and National Guards taking the second game.

Finance Chairman Kelly Bryant announced that tickets would go on sale at 6:30 o'clock, the admission price being 10 and 20 cents. All persons entering the park except players participating in the game will be charged.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected to witness the championship game.

The two floodlights at first base which "blew out" during last week's rainstorm, have been replaced. Workmen have painted the front of the grandstand in order to improve vision on the ball after it is hit by the batter.

Following the championship play-off, the Moore-Hawthorne and Hope-Basket company teams will meet in a regular league game.

League President E. S. Greening again requested team managers to file their list of players (each player signing his own name) with him by Saturday of this week.

Earl W. Erion has completed the last half playing schedule of the 10 qualified teams. Team managers may expect to receive the schedule any day.

Featuring next week's opening games will be a double-header between the Bruner-Ivory team and Williams Lumber company, the contest scheduled for the second game Monday night.

Congress to Get Medical Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—Miss Josephine Roche, chairman of the president's committee on medical care, said Thursday that the 1939 congress would be asked to authorize a broad national health program.

She declined to discuss its scope, but indicated it would be patterned after the 500-million-a-year plan submitted by the national health conference earlier this week.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators heard Thursday that six steel companies engaged a public relations firm last July to make a study of industrial relations, including the CIO, its leadership, its methods, its philosophy, and the nature of its support by Communists.

John W. Hill, of the Cleveland firm of Hill & Knowlton, told the senate civil liberties committee that each of the companies agreed to pay $1,500

The method followed in the service is this: The producer brings in his load of melons, is assigned a place to unload them by Mr. Brooks, and his name is entered on the out-loading book. The first melons unloaded are the first to be shipped out. All selling is done personally by Mr. Brooks to truckers from many parts of the Middle West. He is in constant touch with the majority of buyers by telephone and telegraph. The cantaloupes are loaded loose, by the "hired help," into the big trucks, two hundred twenty-five bushels in an average load, but some carry as many as 350 bushels. The selling and collecting is handled by Mr. Brooks who settles with the grower. The farmer pays for this remarkable service the small sum of five cents per bushel.

What He Does

Out of this seemingly puny commission Mr. Brooks maintains a battery of assistants, who do the actual handling of the melons, pays for the wire service, and floods the place with electric light at night so that 24-hour service is available to seller and buyer alike.

This year's crop of webbed melons started moving during the last week of June and despite the recent dry weather production has held up remarkably well. According to Mr. Brooks the rains of the past few days will add an extra two weeks to the cantaloup season. Mr. Brooks estimates that thus far some 50,000 bushels have been moved out of the county from his concentration point. This total will probably reach seventy-five at mid-July and before the season closes.

On a Long Way

Many farmers living as far away as 30 miles bring their cantaloups to this place to take advantage of the cheap "out-loading" service of Mr. Brooks. But, the melons have a longer way to travel before they find their way to the table of the consumer. Trucks coming from Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana as well as north Arkansas point, haul the famous Hempstead county fruit away and leave for the producer hard cash which comes in mighty handy before cotton selling time in the fall.

Thus year the melons have brought on an average of fifty cents per bushel which means a net profit for the farmer of between $50 and $75 per acre. This is considered to be a good return on the investment for the producer.

Growers of high quality cantaloupes would do well to take advantage of the service offered by Mr. Brooks at a concentration point as they are assured of a sure market and economical handling thus insuring profitable growing of the fruit in Hempstead county.

Mr. Brooks extends an invitation to everyone who can to visit his station and see just how one of the important crops of this section is speeded on its way to the consumer.

Noisy, impatient Grand Central Station lowered its voice and consciously paused to make a path for Nikki as she walked across the concourse between the two old men. It was a tribute to hisome youth and loveliness with golden lights, a figure that men wanted to paint or possess. At the gate she paused and spoke to her father.

"Goodbye dear, I'll write you when we arrive. Steve will take good care of me." She smiled at the young man standing hat in hand, kissed her father and patted him lightly on the shoulder. "Don't worry so much about your old diamonds. I wish you were coming with us."

Peter Jerome smiled back at his only daughter. "Have a good time and give my love to Uncle Jim and Aunt Amy," he said. "Have your bags gone on down?"

"The redcap took them on to the train," said Steve. "We'd better go too."

He grinned. "I'll keep Nikki away from wild horses and tame cowboys. Goodbye sir."

Nikki's father followed the course of his daughter and the man she was engaged to marry down the ramp then he turned away to take a cab. But as he turned his eye caught a figure going through the gate, and he halted, startled.

He raised his arm in an involuntary gesture as though to call the man he had seen. Then he paused thoughtfully, wrote hurriedly in a notebook, tore out the sheet and gave it to a redcap with a dollar and careful directions. That done, Peter Jerome continued on his way, a worried line creasing his forehead.

In her stateroom Nikki removed the tiny jacket of the tailored bolero suit, untied the wisp of a veil and laid aside her straw sailor. Then she turned to the bags

Walter G. Kelly Suicide; Find Body Dangling on Tree

Sheriff Gives Suicide
Opinion—No Inquest

HAD THREATENED IT

Widow Tells Sheriff Kelly
Apparently "Tired of Living"

Walter G. Kelly, 61-year-old Hope man, arose from his bed about midnight Wednesday, walked to a tree at the rear of his home, "killed" a pint of whisky, climbed the tree, adjusted a rope, and leaped to his death. His body, dangling from the rope, was discovered at sunrise Thursday by a daughter.

Sheriff Jim Bearden, who cut down the body about 7 a. m., said that no inquest was necessary, terming Kelly's death a case of suicide.

Kelly resided in the Oaklawn addition of Hope, just northeast of Reke Hill cemetery. Born and reared in Hot Springs, he moved with his family to Hope in 1930. He was a farmer.

Mrs. Kelly, the widow, said her husband had been despondent several months and on "two or three occasions had threatened to take his life."

Carries Out Threat
Mrs. Kelly told Sheriff Bearden and a representative of The Star who visited the suicide scene, that her husband said just after dark Wednesday night:

"You need not be surprised what happens to me at any time."
Mrs. Kelly said her husband had not been worried over financial difficulties, but apparently "was just tired of living."

"He went to bed as usual Wednesday night. About midnight he arose. This was not unusual. He has a habit of getting up at night. I went back to sleep and thought nothing of the matter," Mrs. Kelly said.

The Suicide Scene

The tree where Kelly's body was found is about 50 yards to the rear of his home. Two empty half-pint whisky bottles were found at the trunk of the tree. One bottle contained a small portion of liquor. A partly-filled pint fruit jar of water was found by the bottles, apparently used as a "chaser" in consuming the whisky. A few spots of blood had splattered the bare ground under the tree.

Lower limbs of the tree showed signs of mud where he had climbed the tree. A rope was tied to a limb about 12 feet from the ground. Sheriff Bearden described it as a "perfect nooseman's knot."

Death apparently resulted from choking as Kelly's shoes were touching the ground, the small limb having swayed because of the weight of the body.

Funeral at Tulip
After the body was taken down it was removed to Hope Furniture company undertaking parlors to await funeral arrangements. The body will be taken to Tulip, Ark., for funeral and burial services possibly Friday.

Surviving are his widow, one son, James of Hope; five daughter, Mrs. Grace Brimmage, Mrs. Catherine Osburn, Misses Cleo, Lois and Ruby Kelly, all of Hope.

Three brothers, Jim of Tulip, Ed of Pine Bluff, Charles of Camden; four sisters, Mrs. Carrie Rhodes of Leola, Ark., Misses Drucilla, Pearl and Ada Kelly, all of Tulip, Ark.

Supply Your Calory Needs Is Essential to Health

(This is the first of two articles by Dr. Fisher in which he discusses normal diet requirements.)

The very earliest physicians spoke of the importance of regulating the diet for health. Our real knowledge of foods is, however, a matter of the last few generations. Today we have begun to understand the importance of the essential ingredients in a well-balanced diet.

Far too many people fail to enjoy good health because the food that they eat will not qualify as a normal diet. A normal diet means that the foods included provide suitable amounts of the substances that are known to be essential. Few people, however, think of diet in terms of proteins, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and mineral salts. Such knowledge does not help to visualize a breakfast, luncheon or dinner. We think of foods rather in terms of meats, vegetables, eggs, fish, milk products, and indeed specific forms of these products.

The Council of Foods of the American Medical Association has just made available a special report on the normal diet. The exact amounts of each of the essential food substances necessary for health have been determined by studying the food eaten by healthy people.

We now know the amount of protein, calcium, phosphorus and other substances that each person should have each day. It is always well, however, to add 50 per cent over the minimum requirement in order to provide a margin of safety. This will still permit the average person to remain within the range of the total amount the porter had placed in her stateroom before she arrived. Nikki thought about the trip ahead with a feeling of anticipation. She hadn't seen her aunt and uncle for five years, which seemed suddenly a long, long time, because previously she had spent at least part of every summer on the Lazy R Ranch and Aunt Amy had really taken the place of a mother in her affections since her own mother had died.

Nikki supposed that Uncle Jim was busier now that he had turned the Lazy R into a dude ranch. She remembered him writing that "you easterners will always pay a good price to be entertained, but I can't tell anymore what I'll get for a carload of steers at Chicago." He had been very successful, Nikki knew.

Five years away. And during those five years she had finished school, made her debut, spent a year in Europe and become engaged to Steve Mallory, the young attorney who was this moment arranging his own luggage in another stateroom. He would join her in a few moments for Stephen Mallory was impatient of things which kept Nikki away from him, as he was impatient with details and monotony and dullness. She had known Steve less than a year but he had a way of brushing aside opposition.

Nikki glanced at her own profile in the mirror, a slightly imperious profile if she had recognized it as such, and pressed the release snaps on her dressing case.

She raised the lid and stood staring with sharply indrawn breath. She touched the case with one finger. It was an unconscious movement.

For in the case, instead of her own neat array of toilet articles, Nikki saw a bundle upon bundle of green and gold currency heaped in fascinating disorder.

There were packets of ten dollar bills, twenties and fifties, precisely bound and each labeled "10000." They had evidently been packed in stacks of denominations, but in movement the bundles had been mixed and confused.

The first thought Nikki had was that the interior of the case looked like a bank teller's cage after an earthquake. Letting her breath out slowly she touched the money gingerly as though expecting to see it fade away and be replaced by the familiar golden tops of the jars in her toilet case. But the money remained.

There must be at least a hundred of the bundles, Nikki thought. Whose money was it and why was it in her bag? Nikki thought back. The maid had packed for her. Well, the maid certainly hadn't put $100,000 in her bag. Nor had anyone else. It was impossible. But there it was, impossible or not.

A dozen thoughts started through her head. She should call the conductor. No, better call Steve. Maybe the money was stolen. Maybe it was counterfeit. They might be involved in some long investigation and have to return to New York. They might even be suspected of something, heaven knows what.

Then Nikki saw a brown morocco edge among the piles of green and yellow, and she lifted out a man's wallet that apparently had been tossed into the case with the money. It was an ordinary enough wallet. Nikki had seen others like it in the hands of escorts who had leaped out bills to settle countless checks for countless dinners and lunches.

She opened the billfold and across the inside flap read in plain gold lettering:

"Charles Dillon."

Nikki repeated the name to herself and she held the wallet a moment and then dropped it back into the bag. As she did there was a movement at the door. The lock clicked. Nikki turned half in panic, her right hand making an involuntary gesture to close the bag.

"That's right," said the man standing in the open doorway. "Close it back up. And then just forget that you ever saw it." His eyes were on the case.

THE voice wasn't unpleasant. It was low and rather smooth, the voice of a man very sure of himself and very sure of the situation. Nor was the man unpleasant. His medium height fitted compactly into a dark suit. His age was indeterminate—maybe 35, maybe 40. A little too well barbered, thought Nikki.

She let the lid of the dressing case drop and glanced back at the owner of the voice. He wasn't looking at the bag now. He was looking at her. He saw the blond hair and the wide gray eyes that were even wider now as they stared at him. He saw the smooth column of her throat, the firm chin and the lower lip whose fullness was a perfect foil for the curving line of the upper.

Then he spoke again, but his eyes hadn't ceased their covetous admiration.

"The voice and the eyes don't fit, thought Nikki. The eyes are his. The voice—the husky, stolon from someone else. It doesn't belong. She fought off a feeling that she was standing half-dressed.

"I am very sorry. The bags were together and the porter made a mistake. Not a very serious mistake, although I really haven't much use for the things in this." He held out a dressing case and Nikki saw then that the bag in his hand and the one which held the money were identical.

He stepped over to her and set the bag in his hand down, fastening the case which held the packets of bills.

"I think you will find all of your things in good order." His eyes were still upon her as he bowed slightly at the door and was gone.

It was only seconds after he left that a knock sounded on her stateroom. Nikki hadn't moved. The second rap was followed by "Redcap" and Nikki opened the door to take a note from the colored boy. She felt the train jerk and slowly glide into motion as it left the station. The note was from her father and read:

"Be on your guard but under no circumstances antagonize Charles Dillon who is on the same train. This extremely confidential. Will explain later."

The gang age is imply a phase in which the boy seeks out those who see eye to eye with him and who understand the core of his heart. And as a boy he wants to be with boys.

It is his enthusiasm along lines removed from the woman track, that makes him team up with other boys of like taste. Besides, he understands boy psychology and they understand him. It makes an unbeatable combination.

Poets Return to Human Speech—New Anthology Shows Evidence of It

The poet has never exactly occupied a bed of roses, as far as getting public appreciation for his efforts is concerned; but today his plight seems to be worse than ever before. One poet said recently that to publish a book of verse and wait for some sign of its impact on the reading public's consciousness is like dropping a rose petal into the Grand Canyon and listening for the crash.

But this is partly the poet's own fault. In some cases he has gone precious, retreated to his ivory tower, and spun out delicate threads of rhythm and imagery that the public cannot be expected to understand or to care for. In others, he has retreated from this confused machine civilization and deliberately cultivated an obscure form of expression, speaking a language infinitely remote from that of his audience.

So the public has turned its back on poetry, waiting for someone to return to the ancient function of the poet and give voice to the emotions, the ideals and the yearnings of the inarticulate masses.

Selden Rodman, himself a distinguished poet, discourses to this effect in his introduction to "A New Anthology of Modern Poetry" (Random House, $3); and by the verse included in this volume it is evident that modern verse is at last swinging away from the preciosity and obscurity of recent years and is coming back to where people can enjoy it.

The verse in this book seems to me to be excellently selected. It includes selections from all the prominent American and English poets of the last two decades, some of the verse is extremely fine—and Mr. Rodman's introduction is an excellent critique. All in all, the anthology is well worth owning.

It's a Blow to Find Out That Boys of a Feather
Will Flock Together

(No. 148)

What was that? Did we hear correctly? Did Johnny say that we could go to the movie by ourselves because he was having more fun playing with of calories that he should take.

For example, the minimum amount of calcium that anyone ought to have in any day is 0.45 grams. Unless we take this amount of calcium each day in our food, we will tend to lose calcium from the body. Calcium is essential for the maintenance of the bones and the teeth. Therefore, a standard allowance for calcium is 0.7 grams each day for an adult.

The standard daily allowance for a man or woman of 150 pounds who does a moderate amount of muscular work is protein 70 grams, total calories of about 3000 grams. The remainder of the calories are derived from carbohydrates and from fats.

Of course, the total amount of calories varies according to the amount of work that the person does. Anyone doing strenuous labor may need 5000 calories a day, and very hard workers as much as 8000 calories a day. People who do manual work can satisfy all their needs for energy with 2500 calories per day.

The allowances for calories for women are about 20 per cent less than for men because of their smaller size. Children are also smaller but require relatively more calories because of satisfying the need not only for energy, but also for body growth.

Mack and Timmy?

It always comes as a shock, when John, Jr., utters his first dream of independence and tells us quite plainly that there are people he would rather be with than his mother. No matter how we strive to keep our power over him, the sun is sure to rise on that day when he'll say, "I don't want to be with you this afternoon, Mom. I want to play with the fellows."

But it is a love pat compared to the shock that we get when Johnny is ten or twelve. Until this time he has kept a big hall for us in his heart. Once in a while he has left us to seek enjoyment with his chums, but only once in a while. e kept coming back, and we knew quite well that he was still mother's little baby.

Prefers Gang to Mother

Then all at once it changes. Home becomes a place to gobble a bite and run. His room and clothes mean nothing at all. The minutes in the house irk him. He is restless and remote every hour he has to spend with us. He talks a jargon of mighty things that does not include mothers. Strikes and innings, coils and transformers, even rounds and knockouts. And in almost every case, his world seems to leave us out.

The worst of it is that he prefers a gang or group who have nothing more to their credit than the fact that they have the same enthusiasms as his own. Otherwise they are of no meaning to him at all, so we think. Here we are, being left out in the cold—we, who

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace removed the last major barrier to a proposed highway construction and expansion program in Arkansas today with formal approval of the release of $3,184,650 in federal road aid money for the 1938 and 1939 fiscal years. The order was signed this morning.

The money, under provisions of an amendment to the road aid appropriation measure of the last Congress, will not have to be matched by the state. The amendment was sponsored by Congressman John L. McClellan, whose Wallace's action last night, McClellan is a candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Under Wallace's order Arkansas will receive $3,320,543 for use on established federal highways as regular federal aid money and $864,108 for secondary or farm-to-market roads. The state is entitled to $2,187,752 in regular federal aid for the 1938 fiscal year which ended June 30 and $437,550 which ended (1939) year. The current fiscal year, the state is entitled to $2,132,790 in regular federal aid and

Dream House

Oh, let me build my house upon a hill
Where all the stars come by. Let there be trees
To eastward of it, so the full moon sees
Its walls leaf-patterned when warm nights are still.
Let me plant honeysuckle vines to fall
High-windowed rooms with fragrance, breeze by breeze.
Let me make gardens for the summer bees.
And wide-eyed fires against the winter's chill.
But not too far away! I would look down
On smoke from other chimneys curling blue.

And amber lights at dusk, by which I fell
The friendly houses of a little town:
And I must hear when Sabbath dawns are new.
The call to prayer from some high-stepped bell.—Selected.

The place cards were tiny teddy bears bearing the names of each little boy and girl, and the favors were suckers, balloons, fancy caps and other toys dear to the heart of youth. May Cut Income Levy Exemptions

Drastic Tax Action Fore-shadowed by Treasury Department

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Roswell Magill, acting Secretary of the Treasury, announced Thursday the administration is studying the feasibility of lowering personal income tax exemptions. He declined to say whether he and other officials favored the reduction, but said the subject "certainly" is one being studied in preparing broad tax revision proposals to be submitted to the next congress.

a month for the service.

He named them as: Republic, Bethlehem, Inland and National Steel corporations, and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube, an dthe American Rolling Mill company.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Senate Civil Liberties Committee produced evidence Wednesday to show that steel manufacturers and others made unsuccessful efforts to influence editorial of newspapers at Birmingham, Ala.

The evidence was in the form of letters which passed between officials of the Republic Steel Corporation. One communication, from W. H. Oldham, district manager for Republic, to R. J. Wyssor, president of the corporation, said a committee called on Victor Hansen, editor of the Birmingham Age-Herald. But the letter added:

"I cannot see that this did any good." Oldham's letter also said that he had "cultivated" Jimmy Mills, editor of the Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard paper, but that "at one time he is right and the next time he is wrong."

"In other words he won't stay put," Oldham added.

He said that the Post had been "decidedly less radical than formerly, dating from the time of Roosevelt's demand to make a change in the Supreme Court."

The discussion of Birmingham newspapers began with a letter from Kenneth D. Mann, executive vice president of a Republic subsidiary, to Wyssor, dealing with the desirability of building up Republic's operations in Birmingham to compete with the plane was flying through "continuous rains" and over a "turbulent sea."

Beating Newsreels
FOYNES, Ireland—(AP)—Britain's pick-a-back plane flew above the Atlantic ocean Wednesday night, bound for America after a successful launching from the back of its weight-lifting partner. Hooked together—the sea-plane Mercury above and the flying boat Maia below—the two planes rose from the river Shannon Wednesday morning.

In the air, Donald C. T. Bennett, pilot of the Mercury, said crisply over the connecting telephone: "Ready!" From the "mother" flying boat, pilot A. S. Wilcockson replied: "Okay and good luck." Bennett counted three and cried: "Go!"

Both pilots pulled levers of the secret locking device. The planes parted, and the Mercury roared west at 8 p. m. The Maia returning to the base, Radio Operator Albert Coster, Bennett's only companion, planned to keep in touch with both sides of the Atlantic and with ships at sea.

The Mercury's cargo consisted mainly of photographs, news reels and newspapers rushed to Foyne after the arrival in Paris of King George and Queen Elizabeth on their visit of state. The four-engine plane was expected at Botwood Newfoundland, first stop, in about 11 hours. From Botwood the plane is to go to Montreal and then New York.

Maj. Robert Mayo, technical general manager of Imperial Airways and inventor of the unique plane, watched the take-off. Arrangement of the lever release gears joining the two craft is a secret. Mayo designed the plane to eliminate dangers of heavily laden long distance craft taking off under their own power. Launched from the back of the Maia, the Mercury has a longer flying range than the Caledonia, flying boat, which crossed the Atlantic on trial spins last summer. It also consumes less fuel.

The Mercury has a maximum speed of over 210 miles an hour and a 4,000-mile cruising range. The distance to Botwood is 1,995 miles. The Mercury carried about 1,000 gallons of fuel to inaugurate the 1938 season, preliminary to regular Atlantic traffic planned for next year.

When your small daughter gets it on, she'll never be satisfied until she has two or three more made this way.

For every day, make up Pattern 8292 in percale, Calico or linen with black trim. For parties, in organdy or dotted Swiss, with black velvet ribbon. Pattern 8292 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 35 inch material; 5½ yards of ribbon or braid; 2½ yards ribbon for belt.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Tuna—"Freewheelers" Of the Ocean

GROTESQUE, saucer-eyed, blue-green torpedoes of the deep are tuna, and among the sportiest of all fish. They vary in size from the baby specimens of 10 pounds to leviathans of a ton or more, but the average weigh around 400 to 700 pounds.

As far back as fishermen can remember, tuna have plowed the waters of the Atlantic. Giant tuna, in fact, are the original "freewheelers" of the deep. Their fins fold into little pockets along their back. Favorite tuna stunt is to get up a high speed and then to coast or glide. The oddly designed tuna tail is a high speed propeller in itself, once it begins snashing around.

The schooling fishes, mackerel and herring, are the tuna's favorite foods. Generating a terrific speed, the tuna dashes into a school of its prey taking a disastrous toll and searing the remaining fish far to sea. So the old timers hit on the name "hoss mack'rill." They considered tuna worthless. But today tuna are found really fine in flavor and texture. The business of catching tuna has reached the millions. There is demand not only for the fish sliced fresh like swordfish, but in cans.

Jelly Season
The Jelly-making season is on in full force in Hempstead county. There are several "don'ts" in jelly-making which should always be observed, according to Miss Gertrude E. Conant, extension nutritionist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. Don't try to make too much at a time. It doesn't work, and the chances for success are slim. Don't use too much commercial pectin; too much pectin and sugar spoil flavor. A small amount of good flavored jelly is better than twice the amount if it is not a good flavor. Don't use too ripe fruit. It does not have enough pectin and acid to jelly properly.

The early June apples are much richer in pectin and acid, which are necessary for making jelly "jelly" than are the later varieties. Miss Conant points out. She gives her recipes for apple and mint jelly.

Apple Jelly
Wash the apples and cut in small pieces; do not pare or core them. Borely cover with cold water and cook slowly until the flesh of the apple is soft. Do not over cook. Turn into a bag—a clean flour sack is good to use—and let it drain without pressing until the pulp is rather dry. The juice thus made should be tested for pectin. This is done by putting a teaspoonful of the cooled juice in a glass and adding an equal amount of alcohol. Mix the juice and alcohol by gently turning the glass and let it stand one minute. The pectin, if present, will show in a jelly-like mass.

If a large amount of pectin is present, use equal quantities of sugar and juice. If the pectin does not form a compact mass, but is loosely held together, use three-fourths of a measure of sugar to one measure of juice.

Do not try to make too much at a time. A large enameled pan which is rather shallow is best to use to allow rapid evaporation. Measure from 2 to 4 cups of the juice into the pan, and heat to the boiling point, then add the sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Let it boil rapidly. Use a wooden spoon or paddle. To test for doneness, take up a little of the boiling juice, allow it to cool slightly by moving in the air, then let it drop back into the pan. When the jelly point is reached, it will drop from the spoon as a sheet.

Do not skim the jelly until it is removed from the fire, as a great deal is wasted if it is skimmed while boiling. When the jelly is done, pour it into sterilized, hot jelly glasses, let it cool, and then cover it with hot melted paraffin and tight lid. Too much boiling destroys the color to some extent and makes a thick sticky syrupy mass which will not jelly. Too much sugar has practically the same effect. Apple juice may be used with other fruit juices which do not have so much pectin, and as apple jelly does not have a strong decided flavor, it may be varied as follows:

Mint Jelly

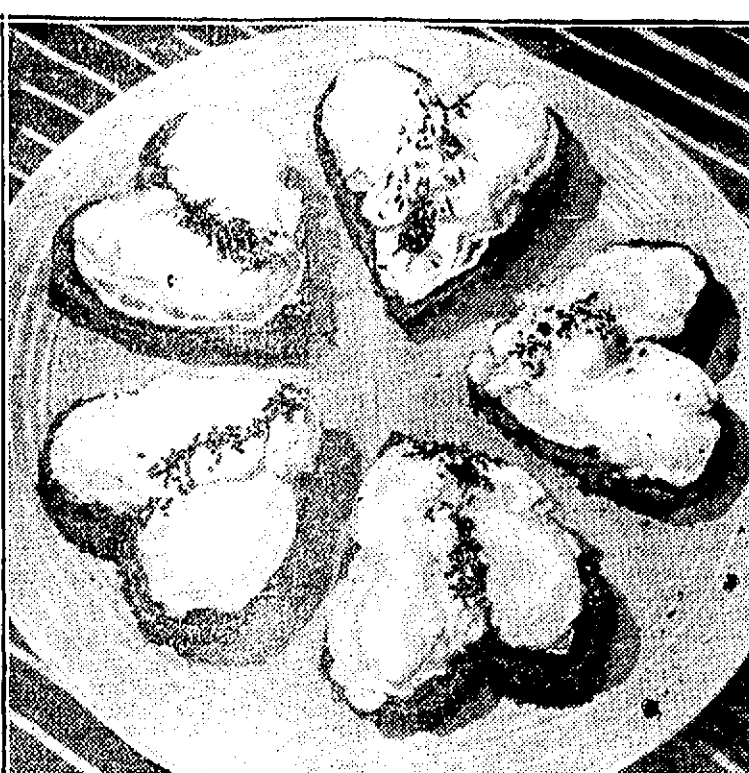

Place one or two mint leaves in the bottom of each glass before pouring in the jelly. The juice may be colored a pale green before the sugar is added, if you like a green mint jelly.

Blackberries, dewberries, and Young berries make excellent jelly. The same recipe may be used for all. To extract the juice, wash the berries and place in kettle with one-third to one-half cup of water to each quart of berries. Cook the fruit until soft and strain as before. Use about three measures of sugar to four measures of berry juice and boil rapidly to keep it a good color.

It is not necessary to make up the jelly just as the fruits appear. Can part of the extracted fruit juice and process it just as though it were fresh fruit. Then, make the jelly fresh as needed. This saves time in hot weather.

CHOCOLATE cake hearts topped with smooth, creamy Banana Ice Cream is a delightful dessert for showers and other occasions.

Letting the June bride. To make:

- ICE CREAM CAKE HEARTS
(Serves 8 to 10)
- 1 chocolate cake (baked in a large shallow oblong pan)
 - 1 1/2 cups sugar
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 2 cups milk (scalded)
 - 1 egg
 - 2 cups coffee cream
 - 2 cups ripe banana (diced)

Cut individual cakes from the large cake, using a heart shaped cutter or a cardboard pattern.

Combine sugar, flour and salt. Add beaten egg and blend thoroughly. Slowly add scalded milk, then cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Let cool, then add cream and fold in banana.

Pour in freezing container of modern ice cream freezer; assemble and cover. Surround with mixture of 3 parts crushed ice and 1 part rock salt. If you have a modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator, you know you'll always have a plentiful supply of hard-frozen ice on hand. Just chip off a large piece into a perforated pan, reserved for that purpose, and crush at the sink. Freeze and let stand to harden as usual. Then place spoonfuls of the ice cream on top of the hearts and decorate with chocolate shot.

juice, either of apple, berries, or plums, may be rubbed through a strainer and made into a fruit butter. The apple pulp may be spiced before being re-cooked.

The new German flying-boat designed for trans-Atlantic use will be launched by a catapult. The plane has a cruising range of 3100 miles at a speed of 150 miles an hour.

Modern Menus

Secco Banana Fritters
1 cupful flour
1/2 teaspoonful salt
2 eggs
3/4 cupful milk or water

Then dip in the fruit, drain it for a moment, and drop each fritter into deep Secco, hot enough to brown a bit of bread in a minute. When golden brown on one side, turn to brown on the other side. When done, drain on crumpled paper, dust with powdered sugar, and serve. Bananas should be peeled, halved lengthwise, and then quartered. If apples are used, they should be cored and pared, then sliced in rings. Peaches should be pared and quartered.

PARIS.—(AP)—French cafe proprietors who encourage any gambling game that has to do with buying drinks for the winners are seriously disturbed over the fact that the bottom has dropped out of the French beard market.

Many a Frenchman use to play "tennis barbe" on the terraces of cafes in Paris. They sat on the terraces and watched for men with beards. The first man to reach a ten score won. White beards counted one, black beards two and red beards three.

The game has few followers now.

Homemakers Exchange

of Helpful Household Hints and Recipes
Conducted by ELEANOR HOWE

By wrapping a meat loaf in a piece of pastry, tucking the ends well under, you will not only have a delicious golden-browned meat loaf after baking, but one which is nicely shaped and easily removed from the pan. Instead of baking the meat loaf in an ordinary loaf pan, place the pastry-wrapped loaf in a large dripping pan, seam side down. Oh yes—remember to prick the pastry well to allow the steam to escape.

It need not cost you a penny to keep your silverware spotless and bright. St. Pat's month or not, there are usually "spuds" on the daily menu and it is worth-knowing that the water in which these potatoes are cooked serves as an excellent silver cleaner. Simply let the silverware stand in the hot potato water for about 1 hour, then lift out and polish dry with a soft cloth, and the task is done.

Here is an attractive, delectable way to "round up" those little dabs of this-and-that in the refrigerator and send them to the table for a lenten feast:

Mix together 8 cups soft bread crumbs, 1/2 cup fat (melted), 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons onion (minced), 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 4 eggs (slightly beaten), 1/4 cup milk, and 1 cup peanuts (chopped). Pack into a well-greased ring mold and bake in a moderately hot oven (375°) for about 30 minutes. Left-over vegetables are delightful when blended with a rich cheese cream sauce and served in this peanut ring mold, providing, of course, their natural flavors have been retained as will be true if they have been stored in the modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator.

Considerable annoyance and friction can be avoided in the family by having each member put his or her initials on each magazine as soon as completely finished with it. Then when everyone has utilized it, the magazine may safely be filed or discarded.

Childhood memories are happily recalled with the preparation of Buttermilk Ice Cream, for this recipe actually uses buttermilk and it is beaten and whipped to a velvety consistency in the ice cream freezer:

Combine 3 cups buttermilk, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 1/2 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Fold in 1 stiffly-beaten egg white and pour in freezing container of modern ice cream freezer. Assemble and cover, then pack with mixture of 3 parts crushed ice and 1 part rock salt.

Turn crank slowly and evenly for 5 to 10 minutes, or until turning becomes difficult. Then carefully remove cover, take out dasher and pack down ice cream with a spoon. Replace cover, draw off water and replenish with ice and salt mixture. Let stand 1 hour.

Have you ever been puzzled with the problem of disposing of stale doughnuts? Really, they can be disposed of—and quite enjoyably too—by family or guests if you freshen them in this manner: Warm the doughnuts in the oven. Then quickly dip in and out of a kettle of boiling water and drop into a paper bag containing a mixture of confectioners' sugar and cinnamon. Shake well and the doughnuts are ready to serve.

Gabby Hartnett Is New Cub Manager

Charley Grimm, Deposed, Released Outright by Owner Rieley

CHICAGO—(AP)—Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett was named manager of the Chicago Cubs, replacing Charlie Grimm, owner Phil K. Wrigley announced late Wednesday. Hartnett will take charge of the club Thursday.

Wrigley made the announcement at a meeting with sports writers.

"Well, we're changed managed," he said simply. "Starting with Thursday, Hartnett will be in charge."

A change had been rumored on and off for two years, when the Cubs, on paper a championship club, blew up late in the season. Each time, however, Wrigley had adhered to his determination to stick to Grimm.

Wrigley announced that Grimm, manager since mid-season of 1932 when he replaced Rogers Hornsby, had been released outright. He will draw salary on a contract which expires December 31. Wrigley said he had yet made a new contract arrangement with Hartnett.

No Sudden Decision

"The decision to change was not a sudden one to the club owner said. 'I have been thinking about it for some time. In fact, I have thought about it so much that I have lost sleep, and have almost lost my appetite.'

"Charlie Grimm has done a swell job, but I decided that a change would be best for the organization. Grimm gave us everything he had, but the club has not done as well as we felt it should."

"Contrary to a rather general belief," he said, "I am very much interested in the Chicago National League baseball club, and this caused me to make a change. I had decided a change would be of advantage to the club, and if anything was to be done, it should be done now."

"I believe the man who can do the most for the club is Leo Hartnett."

Grimm Downcast

Hartnett, ranked with the greatest catchers of all time and one of the National League's most popular players with athletes and fans alike, was grief-stricken. Grimm obviously was downcast and said little.

"I am as happy as a kid with a new toy," Hartnett boomed. "I only hope I'm as lucky as a manager as I have been as a ball player. If I am, we should do all right."

Grimm spoke only when he posed, smiling, with Hartnett for photographers.

"I'm glad you are taking it this way, Charlie," Hartnett said.

"What the hell," Grimm answered. "There's no other way to take it. That's baseball."

Prothro Says Crax a Lucky Ball Team

Manager Says "Crying Towels" for Little Rock Team Not Necessary

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Declaring that the Atlanta Crackers are "just lucky" and that "we'll be back up there pretty soon," Dr. James Thompson Prothro and his squad of Little Rock Travelers arrived in Memphis Wednesday to open a four-game series with the Cubs.

"Sure we've slipped," admitted the Traveler manager, referring to the recent series with the Crackers. "But don't get out any crying towels for the Little Rock team. They aren't at all necessary."

"The 'lucky' Crackers are 'gonna be whittled down soon," Prothro declared, and it isn't gonna be any breeze for them to win the pennant. We'll all have something to say about that."

"The Atlanta team isn't any better than ours or Memphis, and maybe not as good as Birmingham," he said. "My team," he said, "is a Little Rock team that has been beaten because he's the best second baseman in the league. And the other fellows were beating us by getting hits down the middle. Bernie Snyder didn't do so well as shortstop when Schalk wasn't in there and Charlie Heyer, our utility man, didn't fit in at second base."

"That," said Manager Prothro, "is why I'm using Maxey and Brower right away. Texas League managers tell me that Brower is one of the best fielding shortstops in the business and that Oklahoma City ditched him because they needed some heavy slugging. I need an outfielder, too, one that can get the ball and hit, but I'm not picking up any goats."

Prothro had kind words for infielder Bill Nagel.

"If this Nagel keeps on playing like he's been playing, he'll go to the majors. Name a better third baseman in the league."

"Atlanta, huh?" he scoffed. "We'll cut those guys down to our size. Don't worry about that."

North Hits Back in Rail Rate Case

But It Fails to Make Case Against Southern Industry

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(AP)—Northern interests fighting a Southern proposal for lower freight rates made an unsuccessful attempt Wednesday to insert into the records a newspaper advertisement claiming lower living and production costs in the South.

The advertisement was published by the Southern Governors Conference a week ago, at the outset of the current Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

I. C. C. Examiner G. H. Mattingly refused the objection of Edgar Watkins of Atlanta, Ga., chief of Southern counsel, that the advertisement was immaterial and irrelevant.

The advertisement pleaded for consideration of the South's freight rate proposal, and said, in part:

"We have stated that the year-round moderate climate of this section makes possible lower living costs for better standards of living; less for rent, less for fuel and less for food and clothing for a family. This insures lower capital investments, lower construction costs, lower production costs."

"Analyze the above economies, and you will readily understand why workers in this section enjoy better standards of living at lower costs."

Southern shippers are seeking adjustment of freight rates on a mile-for-mile parity with rates obtained within Northern territory. Their spokesmen have argued such a move would help Southern industry develop its Northern market. One Northern argument has been that Southern industries already enjoy natural advantages that make up for any freight rate differential.

L. & A. and K. C.

Merger Is Near

Couch Confirms Report Published in New York Sun

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Sun said Wednesday that negotiations for merging the Kansas City Southern railway and the Louisiana and Arkansas railway, roads now controlled by Harvey C. Couch and his associates, are being carried on actively between officials of the carriers and Wall Street banking interests.

Dillon, Read & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were mentioned as representing the banking side of the negotiations.

While details of the merger plan have not been worked out, it was believed, the Sun said, that it would be effected through an exchange of securities.

Sanction of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the merger has not been obtained, but informed persons were said to feel confident that permission would be granted.

Couch at Hot Springs, Ark., said that active negotiations are under way to bring the Kansas City Southern and Louisiana and Arkansas railways into closer relationship in the interest of the public and territory served and for the improvement of the position of stockholders. Mr. Couch and his associates control the two lines.

Dizzy Dean Still Bargain to Cubs

Branch Rieley Says Pitcher Will Pay for Himself This Year

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, lame arm, eccentricities and all, still is a bargain to the Cubs for $185,000, says the man who sold the big right-hander—Branch Rieley.

The "front" man of the St. Louis Cardinals took time out during a scouting trip for new talent to pay tribute to Dean as "more of a pitching artist than any fellow I ever knew."

Rieley said, "Dean's past and present physical condition, so far as could be determined, was known by Phil

Wrigley, Cubs president, at the time of the sale.

"We couldn't foresee that Dean's arm was going to go back on him, if it actually has. Nevertheless, we realized there was something wrong. All the information we had was written into the sales contract. We did not try to conceal anything."

Emphasizing the Cardinals did not dispose of Dean solely because of uncertainty of his physical condition, Rieley said, "there were other reasons, some of which remained private."

He predicted Dean would earn back his purchase price for the Cubs this year.

"He's a money man, a gate performer. We miss him plenty from this standpoint as well as on the field. Dizzy Dean's not grow on trees."

The total acreage of wildlife sanctuaries in the United States now is 7,937,937, almost double what it was two years ago.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile isn't flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. (Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sullen and the world looks punk.)

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
